ORAL SURGERY & ESSENTIAL OILS

My daughter Sharon had to have her wisdom teeth removed last Thursday. One of the roots was growing to close to the bone. The extraction surgery went quicker than planned (30 minutes instead of 60) and we were sent home with her mouth full of gauze 15 minutes later. About one hour after we arrived home we applied tsuga and helichrysum to the outer jaw area of her face to stop the bleeding. Within 5 minutes she removed the gauze and there was no more bleeding.

Instead of prescription pain relievers, she used the new Copaiba oil with PanAway for pain and inflammation rubbed on over the jaw line. This was remarkable at how well it worked. (Copaiba will be a fun oil to experiment with on all sorts of inflamed areas).

Melrose was applied topically to the outside of her face where it was still numb and the feeling returned within minutes.

She was eating soft foods that evening and returned to work four days later. Because she takes essential oils orally on a daily basis, no need for antibiotics either.

We are very thankful God has given us essential oils and glad we have the best in Young Living.
